

Fire and Water Film Screening and Panel Discussion

We live in the age of the Mega Fire. Fires are bigger and more destructive than any other era in modern history.

Catastrophic wildfire impacts many aspects of life in Arizona: from the quality and sustainability of our water supplies to the safety and livelihood of people who live in mountain towns on the edge of our forests.

Join the National Forest Foundation and the Greater Flagstaff Forests Partnership for a screening of the award-winning short film Fire & Water: Restoring Arizona's Forests, produced by the Salt River Project and narrated by Emmy Award-winner Peter Coyote.

Following the film, discover what a coalition of Arizona organizations, from federal agencies to nonprofits and private businesses, are doing to restore our landscape and protect our community, our forests, and our water from catastrophic fire. Together, we can make a difference!

Film introduced by Kristin Atwell, Writer and Producer

Thursday, May 17
6:30 - 8:00 pm

Museum of Northern Arizona
3101 N Fort Valley Rd
Flagstaff, Arizona

Seating is first come, first served

Panelists

Art Babbott, District 1 Coconino County Board of Supervisors

Andrea Thode, Professor of Fire Science, Northern Arizona University

Linda Wadleigh, Mogollon Rim District Ranger, Coconino National Forest

Erin Young, Water Resources Manager, City of Flagstaff

Moderated by Amy Waltz, Program Director of Science Delivery, Ecological Restoration Institute

